GENERAL

THE arrangement of the Catalogue is alphabetical,—by the name of the Author,—and a classified Index is given at the end. Members of the Institute, therefore, knowing the Author of the work they require, will turn to the body of the Catalogue and will there see if the Library contains it; while Members in search of books on a particular subject, but ignorant of the writer's name, will, by turning to the end, find there a Classified Index, also alphabetically arranged, and with many cross references, which will, it is believed, enable them at once to ascertain what works on any particular subject the Library contains.
